Course content:

You arrived in a new country, maybe only recently, maybe already some time ago. And you have already realised that things are different here in comparison to the culture you are coming from. With this workshop we want to work on some aspects of German culture in order to make life easier for you. It is not about judging, it is about understanding. Why do your German colleagues react the way they do, how do you cope with different styles of working, of supervision. You will also learn to reflect on your own behaviour. We will work on situations that we experience daily during our work, be it interaction with colleagues and supervisors, assignments, discussions or time planning. In this course, foreigners learn to understand German communication and behaviour. Together, we will increase our cultural competence and have fun in a variable and interactive workshop.

Target group: Students, doctoral candidates and postdocs from abroad

Students' comments on this course:

"This workshop should be promoted especially among new international students. My life could have been much easier if I had attended such a workshop at the beginning of my studies in Germany."
